LETTER FROM THE OWNERS
SEPTEMBER TO REMEMBER!

Well... September to remember is an understatement!
As our crazy-busy season starts coming to an abrupt stop, Aly and I are looking forward to doing something we don't get to do nearly enough, which is getting away for a little one-on-one time together.
Our summer schedule is always chaotic, but in the best possible way. Between rallies, bike nights, events, magazine deadlines, traveling, and all the amazing people we get to meet along the way, the months just seem to fly by. And honestly, we wouldn't have it any other way. But as much as we love being on the go, Aly and I do need to hit the pause button every now and then. So, with the riding season winding down and another trip around the sun for me this October, Aly decided to call my bluff and take some time off work so we can “just get away.” It won't be far, and it won't be for long, but it's definitely needed. And if you know us, you already know there's a pretty good chance motorcycles will somehow be involved! BUT BEFORE WE SLOW DOWN... WHAT A SEASON!
Seriously, WOW!

September was packed with those moments that remind us why we love doing what we do and, more importantly, why we love being part of this motorcycle community.
This year marked the 25th anniversary of remembering the lives lost on that tragic day forever known as 9/11. It's hard to believe how much time has passed, but every year we come together to remember, honor, and never forget.

We also wrapped up our final Bike Night at Vehicle City Harley-Davidson, and what a way to finish things off! One very lucky and very grateful rider walked away with the 2007 Dyna Low Rider!
AND we hosted the 19th Annul Bike Show at Bikes on the Bricks too!
If you were there, you know what I mean when I say these events are about so much more than motorcycles. They're about the people. The conversations. The laughs. The friendships. The folks you might not have known six months ago who now feel like old friends. That's the part we love most.

Then, back in late August, we had the privilege of attending the 4th Annual Wyld Stallions Motorcycle Build where we were the announcing MC and entertainment for the event where another winner was selected by public vote, and where numerous winners took home trophies from the Owosso Vintage Motorcycle Days. Once again, the support and turnout were incredible.

And that brings us to the BIG one... OCTOBER 3RD!
That's when we'll randomly draw the winners of the 2026 Ride N' Win Contest!
And I have to tell you, we still can't quite wrap our heads around the fact that we were part of giving away TWO Harley-Davidson motorcycles this year! Two! That's crazy!

By the time you're reading this, someone will already be the proud new owner of the 2004 Softail Deuce from Steel Horse Ranch, along with some seriously awesome prizes from Insomnia Bagger Audio, Twisted Illusions Lighting, and Traction Powersports.
And while there may be only a few card numbers randomly chosen, we hope everyone who participated feels like they were part of it. Because without the riders, readers, businesses, sponsors, event organizers, and friends who continue to support what we do, none of this happens.

You show up.
You ride.
You share our posts.
You come to the events.
You tell your friends.
You support the businesses that support our motorcycle community.
And you keep this whole crazy thing rolling.

For that, Aly and I are genuinely grateful.
NOW, LET'S CONGRATULATE A COUPLE OF WINNERS!
First up, a HUGE congratulations to Linda, winner of the 2007 Dyna Low Rider, thanks to Vehicle City Harley-Davidson in Flint!

And congratulations to Jeff H., winner at the Wyld Stallions Motorcycle Build, sponsored by Michigan Biker Law!

Congratulations to you both!

We love seeing the smiles, the disbelief, and that “Holy crap... I actually won!” moment when someone's name gets called. Those are the moments we'll remember long after the bikes are delivered and the pictures have been taken.

And now... It's time to do it all over again.
October 3rd is coming, and there's another motorcycle and some incredible prizes waiting for their new owners. Will it be you? You never know. That's the fun of it!

So, keep riding. Keep showing up. Keep supporting each other. Keep making those miles count because at the end of the day, the people we meet and the memories we make are the real reason we do all of this.
Thanks for riding along with us.
We'll see you out there on Michigan's Thunder Roads!
~ RJ & Aly

CHAPLAIN CHARLIES CORNER: WHEN THE ROAD GETS DARK

BY CHAPLAIN CHARLIE

October in Michigan is one of my favorite times to ride a motorcycle.

The trees are lit up with reds, oranges, and yellows. The air is crisp. The farm fields are being harvested. You can smell wood smoke in the distance, and every little town seems to have pumpkins on porches and cornstalks tied to light poles.

Here in the Great Lakes Bay Region, there are beautiful places to take that October ride. You might roll through downtown Midland near the Tridge, cruise past the colors around Dow Gardens, follow the Saginaw River into Bay City, or take a back road outside Saginaw where the city quickly gives way to farm fields and woods.

There is something about riding through Mid-Michigan in October that reminds you how quickly the seasons change. And there is another thing we notice this time of year.

It gets dark earlier.

A summer ride that might have ended in sunshine can suddenly become a ride home in the dark. Maybe you stopped along the river in Bay City a little longer than planned or grabbed dinner before heading back toward Midland. Before you know it, the temperature drops, the deer start moving, and that familiar road looks completely different.

That got me thinking about something bigger than motorcycles. Sometimes life gets dark too.

You can be cruising along, everything going pretty well, and suddenly something changes. A phone call. A doctor's appointment. Trouble at work. Financial stress. The loss of somebody you love. One minute you are riding in the sunshine. The next minute it feels like somebody turned the lights off. As motorcycle riders, we know what we do when darkness comes.

We turn on the lights.

We do not sit alongside the road complaining that the sun went down. We turn on the headlight and keep moving.

Jesus said something similar about the way we are supposed to live. In Matthew 5:14, He tells His followers, "You are the light of the world."

He did not say, "You might someday become the light." He said, "You are the light."

That means there are people around us every day traveling through dark stretches of road, and God may use us to help them see their way through. Most of the time, being that light is surprisingly simple. It is calling somebody you have not heard from in a while. Buying a cup of coffee for the guy having a rough morning. Checking on another rider who has been missing from the group. Listening instead of talking. Forgiving someone. Praying with somebody who is hurting.

Sometimes it is simply reminding another person, "You are not riding this road alone."

Anybody who has ridden at night knows that a motorcycle headlight does not light up the entire road to your destination. It gives you enough light for the next part of the road.

Then the next.

Then the next.

Faith works a lot like that.

We would love for God to show us the entire route. We want every turn marked, every pothole identified, every detour explained and the destination clearly visible. But that is rarely how life works.

Psalms 119:105 says, "Your word is a lamp to my feet, and a light for my path."

Notice it says a lamp to my feet, not a giant stadium light showing the next twenty years. Sometimes God gives us enough light to take the next step, and then we trust Him for the step after that. Riders understand that.

When you are riding a dark country road somewhere between Midland, Bay City and Saginaw, you stay focused on what your headlight reveals. You trust your machine. You pay attention. You keep your eyes moving down the road. You do not panic because you cannot see five miles ahead.

You ride the road in front of you.

Maybe that is exactly what somebody reading this needs to hear today. You do not have to figure out the next five years. You might not even have to figure out next month. Just ride the road God has put in front of you today. Do the next right thing. Make the phone call. Say the prayer. Offer the apology. Give someone another chance. Help the person who needs help. Tell somebody you love them. And when you see another person traveling through a dark stretch, shine a little light their direction.

October brings Halloween, and everywhere we look there are ghosts, skeletons and things that go bump in the night. That can all be fun. But there is enough real darkness in this world without us adding to it.

People are hurting. People are lonely. People are afraid. That means this world needs light more than ever. According to Jesus, that is part of our job. So, enjoy these beautiful October rides while we still have them. Ride past the Tridge, take in the fall colors around Midland, head toward the riverfront in Bay City, or find a two-lane road through the woods and see where it takes you. Stop for a bowl of chili. Grab a cider and donut. Watch the leaves swirl behind the bikes in front of you. Appreciate another riding season in this beautiful part of Michigan.

Then, when the sun starts dropping behind the trees and the road ahead begins to darken, remember something.

Your headlight was made for moments like this.

And so were you.

Keep the shiny side up.

God bless, and I'll see you on the road.

THE ROAD CHANGES, THE MISSION DOESN'T

October in Michigan brings a change you can feel. The air gets colder, the leaves turn brilliant shades of red, orange, and gold, and every mile reminds us that another riding season is beginning to wind down. There is something special about throwing on an extra layer, firing up the bike, and heading down a Michigan road surrounded by the colors of fall. But for Michigan Veterans Riders, it has never been only about motorcycles. It is about camaraderie, service, family, and continuing the mission.

Many of us learned in uniform that we take care of the person beside us. That responsibility didn't disappear when we came home or took off the uniform. Sometimes continuing to serve means helping a veteran find the resources they need. Sometimes it's showing up for a benefit, funeral escort, memorial ride, or community event. And sometimes it's simply sitting down with a brother or sister who needs someone to listen.

LEAVE NO VETERAN BEHIND

Veterans can be pretty good at saying, "I'm fine," even when we're carrying more than we let anyone see. So, pay attention to the people around you. Call the veteran you haven't heard from lately. Invite someone along for a ride or a cup of coffee. If somebody has stopped showing up, find out why.

Don't assume someone else will do it. Be the somebody.

One phone call or conversation might seem like a small gesture, but it can mean more than you'll ever know.

MORE THAN THE PATCH

When Michigan Veterans Riders roll into a community, the motorcycles may get people's attention, but our actions should be what they remember. The patch on our backs represents something bigger than ourselves. It represents veterans who continue to serve their communities and stand beside their fellow veterans. Every benefit, memorial, fundraiser, escort, and helping hand sends a simple message: We still serve.

ENJOY THE FALL MILES

October also reminds us that Michigan's riding season won't last forever. Take the scenic road. Enjoy the fall colors. Grab breakfast with your riding family. Take the pictures and make some memories.

But ride smart. Wet leaves, colder pavement, shorter daylight hours, deer, and unpredictable Michigan weather deserve our respect. Watch each other's six and make sure everyone who leaves with the group comes home with the group. The destination can wait. Bringing everyone home matters more.

TO MY BROTHERS AND SISTERS IN ARMS

We served in different branches, during different eras, and under different circumstances. Our stories aren't the same, but the bond between veterans doesn't require them to be. As another riding season begins winding down, remember that our commitment to one another doesn't.

Keep riding when you can. Keep serving. Keep telling the stories of those who are no longer here to tell their own. And when you see a brother or sister struggling, reach out your hand. One day you may be the one offering it. Another day, you may need someone to offer theirs.

The leaves will fall and the motorcycles will eventually be parked for another Michigan winter—but our mission doesn't get parked with them.

Until next month, keep the rubber side down, keep your head on a swivel, and remember:

Veterans helping veterans isn't just something we say. It's who we are.

Ride for the memories. Ride for the ones we've lost. Ride for the veteran who still needs us. And above all, ride with purpose. Because motorcycles may have brought many of us together, but service, sacrifice, and brotherhood/sisterhood are what keep us together.

Until our roads cross again, keep your head up, your heart open, and your brothers and sisters close. We served together. We ride together. And we never leave one of our own behind.

FALL MILES, LIFESAVING SKILLS & A MOTORCYCLE GIVEAWAY

THE RIDING SEASON ISN'T OVER YET!

September may have signaled the beginning of fall, but there are still plenty of miles left in the riding season. Cooler temperatures and Michigan's changing colors can make this one of the best times of year to ride.

The changing season also brings changing road conditions. Wet leaves can become extremely slick and may hide potholes, gravel, or uneven pavement. Cooler temperatures can affect tire pressure and traction, while shorter days and increased deer activity create additional risks. Before heading out, check your tires, lights, weather, and riding gear. Give yourself extra stopping distance, use caution on shaded roads where moisture may linger, and make sure other drivers can see you.

Enjoy the fall miles, stay alert, and keep looking out for one another.

A WORD FROM LARRY

When a motorcycle crash happens, the actions taken before first responders arrive can make a meaningful, even lifesaving, difference.

Michigan Biker Law is proud to sponsor Road Guardians Accident Scene Management classes for groups of friends, riding groups, clubs, and organizations with at least 20 participants. This hands-on training teaches riders how to safely respond at the scene of a motorcycle crash and assist an injured rider until help arrives.

I will also join the class to discuss important Michigan motorcycle laws, explain insurance requirements and coverage every rider should understand, and answer questions directly from your group.

As the busy riding season begins to slow down, fall and winter are great times to bring everyone together, become better informed, and learn skills that could help protect a fellow rider.

Interested in bringing a sponsored class to your group or organization? Email events@michiganbiker.com for more information.

THE SUMMER'S DAYLIGHT BUT FALL'S MOONSHINE

It's been a few months since we've last kicked it on pen and paper. Or should I say with CPU and email. But the time was well spent on the road and supporting clubhouses bars. I have come to the point in life where support is the only thing that matters. Because without that our clubs would not thrive. Whether it be a poker-run, beer-bash, Jack-bust, funeral for a fallen soldier, community service, or just a club's party night... We do it to assist that club keeping their lights on or contribute to the family of their lost member. In general, to better our communities.

This year, I've decided to support my brethren by not only talking about it, but by putting my money where my mouth is. Let's talk about it. When you hit that highway to support a club's anniversary party, whether you are on twos, in a cage, hop a bird, or get on the Greyhound. You are no doubt taking money out the household. There is a modest way of traveling...the minimalist way...the scoota bum way!! Then there is the more affluent way...the expensive hotels, the nightly steak dinners, and the big luggage carrying five outfits and three you proly won't wear-lol.

When I'm dolo, I've learned how to get to my destination with a $500 weekend. And most is spent on premium gas and maybe octane booster-Big Facts. When in a pack, I'm liable to be in a hotel running about $130 a night. Or it depends on the area we stop in and if it's the weekday rate or weekend. (not my preference) While I haven't gotten to the point of the tent, I have friends and compadre's around the nation, so I may get a spot on a couch or catch a nights rest in the clubhouse. As quiet as kept, The Green Book is still relevant. I say all that to say this, you could spend as little as $250-$1500 per weekend. Unless you turnin and burnin on a regular, then it's just gas money and spending for the day. Buying two rounds of drinks at a night club can be $200 by itself. Those same two rounds at a clubhouse...well, IYKYK.

So, my question to you is...are you a scoota bum, a treasured rider, or somewhere in between? Hit me up on IG and let me know your thoughts. Either is cool, but I know for a fact, I've spent over $100K in my last nine years of crossing state lines. My next nine years I plan to do it a differently. I won't look like the cat dragged something in, and I won't be staying at Camp Crystal Lake, but I have been blessed with a good social network. And, I do plan to get a KOA membership. But, if my friends and family will have me, I will gladly leave a $50 spot on the dining room table be. LMAO, I tried that too and got literally cuzzed out because I left money. I was told it was like a smack in the face...duly noted...won't let that happen again Bro.

I'm really interested in hearing your stories. Much Love and Respect (ML&R)

YEAH, OR MEH?

TCMT Universal 8mm Dual Mirrors

BY ERIC "BIG E" KRUER

Let's be honest—when you're putting aftermarket parts on a premium motorcycle like my Road Glide, there's always that little voice in your head asking: "Is this going to look like an upgrade, or is it going to look like I bought it at the bargain store?" That's exactly what I was wondering when I put the TCMT Universal 8mm mirrors on my Road Glide. And I'll tell you right off the bat...I was pleasantly surprised.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS

The first thing I noticed when I pulled them out of the box was the weight.

These mirrors actually have some heft to them. They didn't feel like some cheap, lightweight aftermarket mirror that I was afraid to tighten down too much because I might break it. The aluminum construction gave them a solid feel, and that immediately made me feel better about putting them on the bike.

Then came the real test: What are they going to look like on the Road Glide? That's important to me. I've got a nice motorcycle, and I don't want to put a $30 part on it that makes the rest of the bike look like a million bucks and the mirror look like it came from the clearance bin. Thankfully, these didn't do that. Once they were installed, I thought they looked right at home on the bike.

LET'S TALK ABOUT THE MIRRORS

This is where these TCMT mirrors really earned some points with me. The actual mirror image was clear and easy to see, and I didn't notice any annoying distortion. But the thing I really liked was the dual-mirror design. That second mirror gives you another view of what's happening behind you and around you. And as a motorcycle rider, I'll take all the visibility I can get. When I'm riding, I'm constantly checking what's behind me, who's coming up beside me, what's sitting in my blind spot and what's getting ready to pass me. Having that additional mirror gave me a better idea of what was happening around the bike. That's not just about looks. That's useful.

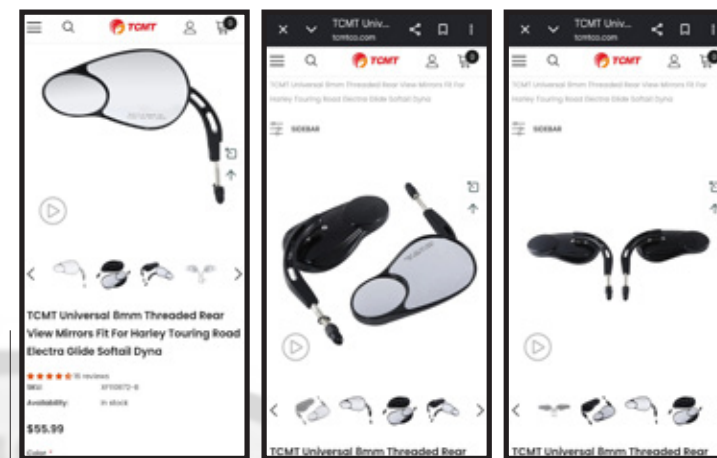

THE ONE THING I DIDN'T LIKE

Now, these aren't perfect.

The biggest thing I wasn't crazy about was the way the base of the mirror sits on the handlebar controls. The mirror itself tightened down just fine, and once I had everything adjusted, they didn't move. So functionally, I have no complaints there. But the base of the mirror is rounded, while the area of the handlebar controls where it mounts is flat. That leaves a little bit of an odd-looking transition between the mirror base and the control housing.

NOW, LET'S BE FAIR...

Most people probably aren't going to notice it. Someone walking past the bike isn't going to stop and say, "Hey Big E, that mirror base doesn't sit perfectly flat." But I noticed it. And once I notice something on my motorcycle, it's hard for me to unsee it. It didn't bother me enough to take the mirrors off, but it did cost them a few points in the appearance department.

THE BIG E VERDICT

Overall, I'm impressed with the TCMT mirrors.

They have a solid, quality feel.

They don't look cheap on the Road Glide.

The mirror image is clear.

The dual-mirror design gives me better visibility around the bike.

And once they're tightened down, they're staying where you put them.

My only real complaint is the way the rounded mirror base meets the flat handlebar control area. It's more of an aesthetic issue than a functional problem, but it's something I noticed.

Would I take them off the bike because of it? Nope. And that's probably the biggest compliment I can give them. For an aftermarket mirror, these didn't leave me wishing I had spent a bunch more money on something else.

SO... YEAH, OR MEH?

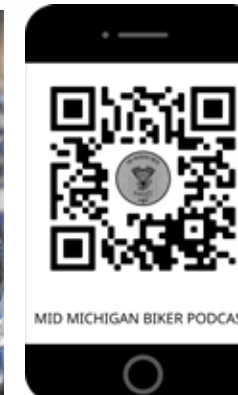

YEAH!

The TCMT mirrors surprised me in a good way. They're solid, they look good, they give me a better view of what's happening around me, and they don't have that cheap aftermarket look I was worried about. The mounting design could be a little cleaner, but overall... I'd run 'em.

BIG E RATING

HOT RODS TOPICS

We have been so busy with our Car and Bike Show that it seems like everything through the summer months just flew by. Luckily, we found time for our West Branch Trip, a couple of poker runs and dinner rides, which is all we had time for. We are an organization that wants to help others with their goals by helping local communities, initiatives feeding the hungry, supporting Foster Care, Suicide Prevention, assisting with supplies and helping Veterans like Camp Liberty, The American Legion in Milan and so many more. But helping others is what we do and the appreciation we have been shown is rewarding enough. Especially when we consider what a lot of these organizations do themselves. We are proud to say that we have been blessed with some of the best bikers and individuals you could ever ask for and their dedication is never unnoticed. We have some future events coming up, including a hay ride at Jim and Elaine's, another dinner ride or two, the famous fall chili cook-off, reaching out to our next batch of schools for our suicide prevention benches and of course events that we will attend and help with wherever we can. Thank you, RJ and Aly, at Thunder Roads for all you do and God bless all of us that help others who can't help themselves.

Stay safe and God Bless,
HOT ROD

JOKER'S WILD

Was minding my own business, eating my KFC at a local park, when this woman walks up to the picnic table and points her finger at me and yells, "I hope you're aware of the fact that the chicken you're eating had a family." Sensing she was a Vegan and this was a regular public display for her righteousness, I replied in a very calm and friendly voice, "Yes ma'am, that's why I ordered the bucket. No one gets left behind on my watch."

After my annual prostate exam, the Doctor left the room just as the Nurse was entering the room. As she shut the door behind her after entering, she whispered the three words no man wants to hear in that situation, "Who was that man?"

This morning, I was beaten up by a very busty woman in the elevator of my condo. I was staring at her boobs when she said calm as can be, "Would you please press one?" She asked so politely, so I did. I don't remember anything after that but did wake up on the floor of the elevator on the ground level

A fellow employee, after grabbing his 4th Krispy Kreme donut from the dozen I brought to work for everyone, and I asked him to please place it back in the box for others, he gently put it back in the box and then as he was leaving the Employee Lounge had the nerve to tell me that I was a bully and he also felt that I was also extremely bossy. I looked him up and down and said, "You're totally wrong on that assessment, I am Aggressively Helpful."

My four primary moods: I need coffee, I need a nap, I need a vacation, I need duct tape, a rope and a shovel.

I "accidentally" handed my wife a glue stick instead of the Chapstick on the living room little table between our recliners. She's still not talking to me.

How did Doctors conclude that exercise prolongs life? A rabbit jumps all day and lives for apprx. 2 years, yet a turtle takes it slow and easy and lives for 200 years. So, my point is, rest, chill, eat, drink, be happy and enjoy life in your 90's. Again, this is an independent study by myself but it's also a proven fact.

Quite often, when you read a person's FB or Insta posts, you can tell approximate time they switched from sweet tea to alcohol.

Went to a nice restaurant where had heard that the smoked mullet was the best around, so had to check this bold statement out. As I arrived, there was a large, double-sided and hinged Notice board that read: Remember What The Valet Who Parked Your Car Looks Like Due To The Fact That We Do Not Have Valet Parking.

Looking into Essential Oils as that seems to be very trendy these days for a hobby as my wife keeps telling me that I don't do anything but kick back in my comfy recline and watch ESPN. Saw this one and thought, isn't this the one that is intended to calm other people down? Chloroform? It's Chloroform isn't it?

People who cheat on their taxes disgust me. This is Not the world I want to raise my 23 dependents in, that's for dang sure.

As my sweet Grammy used to say, "If common sense was lard, most people wouldn't be able to grease a cast iron skillet."

Those who like my posts are happier, more intelligent and better looking than those that don't; according to a study that I just made up.

The word of the day is Shidiot: A person who makes stupid decisions and ends up in some really crappy situations; Shidiot.

I just told my daughter she seriously needed to check her attitude.

She stood up straight and looked me in the eyes with full intent and declared, "For complaints you best contact the Manufacturer."

Life Lesson - Never let your Mom kiss you anywhere on your face the morning of your Dads' birthday.
